ABSTRACT

Trainers often orientate themselves on the aims students set for themselves or on the educational objective students attending the course should achieve. What every student attending a language course wants is to become more fluent and better when expressing him-/herself. He/She wants to reach a higher level. Needless to say, students who currently have B2-level should reach the next level, C1 and in a C1 course a teacher should train them so that they pass the corresponding exam.
