

STRUCTURE AND COMPOSITION OF KNITTED FABRICS

Rashida Abduganievna Ergasheva

Senior Lecturer Namangan Institute of Engineering Technology E-mail:

ergashevarashida@gmail.com

ABSTRACT

Raw materials are one of the most important factors in increasing the range of knitted products. Different results can be achieved by using different fibers and yarns in the same color and pattern [13]. The structure of the knitwear is determined by its size, shape and adaptation of its elements: hoop and additional yarns, etc. It is recommended for the production of underwear and linen knitwear with excellent properties of flax due to the combination of mixed fibers.

Keywords: industry, soft fiber, knitwear, clothing model